WEST POINT.

THE BOARD OF VISITORS GETTING TO WORK-WHAT THEY ARE EXPECTED TO DO.

WEST POINT, June 4, 1875. To-day was another dull day on the post, and the Board of Visitors had plenty of time, broken up as they have been with committees, to begin their investigation into the ways and doings of the gentlemen who, by reason of the fact that they wear shoulder straps and being well backed up at Washington, rule the roost here with an iron hand. Heretofore investigations by boards of visitors have been mere formalities; but it is understood that the present Board intend to make a | Smith, to luriber the ends of justice, granted a

Mr. Thomas J. The present Board is a remarkably strong one, although there is only one West Point graduate in it; and, if history tens the story truly, he graduated over forty years ago. This member is deneral faceb Ammen, of Maryland. Though one of the eddest living graduates and is well toward his three score years and ten, he is as active as the younders and ten, he is as active as three score years and ten, he is as active as the younders make my the modern excellences of West Point—what is lacking to make it better. WERE THE CADETS TREATED WITH POLITENESS? TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:- WEST POINT, June 3, 1875.

I would not presume on your valuable space, nor would I venture to tread on that ground which is so dangerous, where ladies have to be mentioned, were it not for some reasons that I will specify—first, because of the fast that I belong to the battalion of cadets at the Military Academy, and was present when the young ladies of Vassar Conege visited us; and secondly, because I see in this morning's HERALD that a lady student has rushed into print, denying that they ran when the battanon charged. It would seem that this lady desires to have us believe that all the pupils of Vassar are of a hardened, masculine hature, and that it is cowardly for a genuine, well-dorn lady to run irom a nostlie front of dayonets and musketry. Now, I herer before knew that the lair sex were either admired for bravery, which is sometimes effrontery, or for hardingod, which is sometimes effrontery, or for hardingod, which is sometimes effortery, or for hardingod, which is other than hood, retiring modesty, fawn-like timidity and the seastlyteness of the flower, which closes its gossamer petals at the approach of the dewline deference to this lady and her file companions of the same sex, that the cades had double the devial and double the work put upon their shoulders because of the afternool call made by the Vassar pupils, who dropped on us like angels from the clouds, unexpectedly and without previous latimation And yet lam exceedingly sorry to say that with his this extra work, and added the compusory filtration, which, I think is the hardest work in the world, there was not any recognition by the ladies. Our officers were invited by the Vassar pupils to a sumptions banquet on board the Mary Powell on her after durk trip to hard the Mary Powell on her after durk trip to hard work, ordining and compusory filtration for the benefit of the scientific pupils of Vassar College—not one of them was mytted to sup at the gorgeous banquet. Besides the before enumerated duties of the cadets, who did all the hard work, ordining and compusory filtration to the badies of many things that they did not know at the Point. I sope it will not be deemed ungenerous frames and the that the inscriptions of hards, mural tablets, old student has rushed into print, denying that they ran when the battanon charged. It would seem sics of the fair young pupil had been neglected her Alma Mater most sadly. A GRAY CADE I.

SUICIDE OF AN ARMY OFFICER.

A distressing case of spicide occurred vesterday afternoon, the person being Captain William H. Brown, of the Fifth United States cavalry regiment. It appears that the Captain, who came to this city some three weeks since, met Colonel W. G. Rankin, an old associate, last Wednesday evening, and, after the exchange of friendly greetings, pressingly urged him (Colonel Rankin) to pay him a visit at his residence, No. West Twenty-seventh street. In company with Mr. Coster Colonel Rankin vesterday ofternoon complied with the invitation. On entering the house they were shown to the Captain's room, at the door of which they knocked. A voice from within promptly answered, "Come in," and the pair opened the door. To their norror the first copiect that has taeir gaze was Captain Brown lying on the floor in a pool of blood, his throat cut almost from ear to ear. By his side were two razors and a razor strop. Colonel Rankin promptly despatched his companion for a physician after which he sought an explanation from the dying man. "It's no use, Colonel," gasped the latter; "I am about to die;" and beyond a lew fartner inconserent remarks, from which he copies that the deed was the result of melancholy, nothing could be elected from him.

Dr. Hoff, soon arriving, as once set to work to sew up the gash, and, after much difficulty, succeeded in so doing, and the prospects of the patient's recovery, although not promising, were lair. Secatives were then administered, and the unfortunate man relagsed into comparative eshe.

Two hours afterward, the time being ani-past five o'clock, he was suddenly taken with convolutions, and, despite the assidaous attention of his physicians, they micreased in violence until at last the stitches closing up the wound were rect assingler, and in a few minutes thereafter the man had breathed his last.

Captain Brown was thurty years of age, and, it is understood, was unmarried. He was born in Maryland, originally appoined to the arm, as Second Lieutenaut of the kevents limitary. May at the door of which they knocked. A voice from April 1, 1865, with a brevet as Major from the same date.

A Coroner's inquest will be held to-day.

Immediately on the death of the unfortunate man his rather. Rev. Henry Brown, a prominent clergyman in Chester. Fa., was telegraphed for and arrived at a late hour last high.

He stated that about a month ago his son paid him a visit at his home, and there manifested symptoms of insanity. He appeared deeply grieved at the sad occurrence.

The deceased was born in Chester, Pa. in 1840, where he resided antil the outbreak of the war, when he entered the volunteer army as second lieutenant, his commission dating May 14, 1861. On the 18th of June, 1864, he was oreveited captain of meritorious services and was again rewarded April 1, 1865, by receiving the brevet of major.

ANOTHER NEGRO EXECUTED.

A FATAL TERMINATION TO A COLORED MAN'S JEALOUSY-A YOUNG NEGRO EXECUTED FOR KILLING THE LOVER OF HIS ALLEGED WIFE-SCENES ON THE SCAFFOLD.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 4, 1875. Three negroes were to have been hanged here to-day, but only one of them, Aifred Oranga was executed. Jacob Stanord, who was convicted with Purifoy for the murder of John Casey, an piled for and received a new trial and was again convicted yesterday. His counsel intend to carry his case to the Supreme Court, and Governo THE AFFAIRS OF THE ACADEMY.

Of course nobody expects, however thorough the examination may be, that anything so startling reverse the decision, and it is say probable to the strongest without the supreme Court will as an irregularity will be bronch; to the strongest without the strongest with the strongest without the strongest without the strongest respite to Purifoy, who was his accomplice, took place at precisely one o'clock, in the presence of a very lew people. His spiritual advisors with members of the press being the only ones admitted. He maintained a total indifference to his fate till the last moment. His extraordinary conduct led many to believe him insane, but an examining board of physicians pronounced him of sound mind. On the scaffold he paid very little attention to the services and prayers, but kept constantly clewing something.

sound mind. On the scruloid he paid very little attention to the services and prayers, but kept constantly chewing something. When asked if he had anything to say he stepped forward to the trap similary and said. "Weil, no; unless it is to say goodby," for i am about to be on." Without a quiver he offered his arms to be pimonred and smiled again as the white cap was orawn over his lace. His form was enclosed in a white shroud and the noose adjusted to his neck. In this position he stood scarcely a second, when at a given signal the trigger was anapped, the drup cell, and in afteen minutes after Alfred Orange had paid his last earthly debt.

This was the result of jealousy on the part of Orange, on account of a dusky maiden to whom they were both attached. The evillence went to show that on the evening of the murer Orange came nome about his usual hour and found Mayfield stitleg in company with the womin called Parsy Harvin, a nerrees with whom he was infatuated. It was at ner mosther's house, and he was alving with them. He passed up stairs without speaking and was not seen again till late in the evening, when hayfield was about to leave. As he was standing at the gate in front of the yard, about building Patsy 'good night,' Orange russed upon him with an exis and dealt him a blow on he skell, killing him almost instantly. After the murder se ran away, out was speedlily overtaken and conveyed to Juli. This is the story according to the evidence; but altogether differently. Through the courtesy of the Sheriff the Herkald correspondent was allowed to have an interview with him. The narrative is substantially as follows:—the boarded with the gards mother and lived with her as a husband for fourteen months. The mother was not aware, however, of this, and they kept it concealed, because she was opposed to their marriage. He said they had jo ned ands over a year before and sworn to be husband and with the gard how was in the habit of majing some attention to the woman he called his wire as he set get leans and celev

At the time the Captain was a short distance ahead of the speaker, and, appearing not to notice the remark, walked on. In about half an hour ne returned, and going up to Adams in an anagry and protable manner commanied him to leave the steps and go inside the building.

This the latter refused to do, saying that the premises were his and he, not violating the law in any respect, had a periect, right to remain where he was. "I'll show you," replied the Captain, with an epither and oath unfit for publication, and clutching Adams by the

On the succeeding day the employer of Adams sent a note to Captain Williams, at the Mr. Adams sent a note to Captain Williams, at the Fourth precinct station house, awking for an explanation, but two days passed and none came. Going to the station nouse himself Mr. Campbell was met by the Captain, when in a gentlemanly minner he requested an explanation, with the surly rejoinder that he "had better mind his own business." ROBBERY IN GRAND STREET.

BURGLARS ENTER A JEWELRY STORE IN BROAD

DAYLIGHT AND CABRY OFF THE STOCK. Last Wednesday afternoon Mr. Fetastein, a jeweller in Grand street, between Mott and Elizabeth streets, closed up his store while he went to a store a lew doors distant on some business. He reformed again in a lew minures and loand that the padicok of the door had been wrenched of by means of a small jimmy, as the point of it remained in the door, and that hearly all of his stock had been carried away by thieves. There was also in the store a large number of watches and chains wanth had been left to be repaired. They were also taken by the davight maranders. It is supposed by the poince that the thieves entered the store while a company of knights Templars were passing through Grand street, and in the crowd their actions were covered from the view of the poince. Capitain Allatre, of the Fourteenth precinct, was nothered of the robbery and has detailed two competent officers to work up the case. Mr. Felistein is unlucky. No later than last summer his store was entered by thereys, and his som Moses, who was in the store at the time, was aimout choked to death by them, and a large part of the stock was stolen.
